UNDERSTAND THIS: Wednesday in D.C Was Not A Defeat, Hundreds of Thousands Rallied To Save The Republic. TPTB are Now Terrified of Us.

This is the FIRST time the right has stood up in large enough numbers to terrify TPTB. Yes, it did get out of hand with the help of outside agitators, but with better comms and coordination, it is an unstoppable force. It must be beaten down and silenced before more can join us.

2 I was on the ground. A million is the conservative number, as the crowd extended from infront of the white house to well beyond the Washington monument, the march filled four streets and just kept going for an hour plus

1 I was there.... I'd guess around 250,000. Locals said it was the biggest crowd they had ever seen, outside of Inaugurations.

1 The fact that they're this paranoid and going full-purge about a handful of people entering the capit building is astounding. They literally want Trump impeached. I was under the illusion that these pe had power but it's a complete facade. If they're this immensely frightened over that then how would act if we actually went full force?

2 We don't need security. We don't need armed guards. We just walk up in your office. Fuck it. With this many people it can be done now to any business, any media company. We can win whenever we want.

1 Another time foil hat Time for me. That was a test run. Trump and co wanted to see how well we could all do before really calling us forward.
